Impact of Neoadjuvant Chemotherapy on Post-Neoadjuvant Radiation Therapy in Patients With Locally Advanced Rectal Cancer. The objective of this study was to evaluate the impact of neoadjuvant chemotherapy (NAC) and post-neoadjuvant radiation therapy (post-NAC RT) on local recurrence-free survival, overall survival, and postoperative complication in patients with locally advanced rectal cancer (LARC). A total of 192 patients with LARC from January 2009 to February 2015 were divided into those who received NAC (n = 100) and those who received preoperative RT only (n = 92). The outcomes between the groups were compared. After a median follow-up of 35.9 months (range, 6-84 months), the 5-year local recurrence-free survival (LRFS) rates were significantly higher in the NAC group than in the post-NAC RT group [56% vs. 40% (p = 0.032)]. The 5-year overall survival (OS) rates were significantly higher in the NAC group [82% vs. 68% (p = 0.04)]. There was no significant difference between the 2 groups with regard to postoperative complication (p = 0.055). Neoadjuvant chemotherapy followed by post-NAC RT resulted in higher 5-year LRFS and OS than post-NAC RT alone in patients with LARC.
